Understanding Taiwan Tax Regulations

Taiwan's Ministry of Finance has announced that it will require taxpayers meeting certain criteria to prepare three layers of transfer pricing documentation.

Background

International tax systems continues to evolve, aiming to tackle concerns over base erosion and profit shifting (BEPS) and perceived international tax avoidance techniques performed by high-profile multinationals. The OECD's Action Plan and recommendations on BEPS have greatly influenced how Taiwan intends to shape its transfer pricing regime.

After much discussion, Taiwan's Ministry of Finance has announced that it will adopt the OECD recommendations and will require taxpayers meeting certain criteria to prepare three layers of transfer pricing documentation being as follows:

- A master file giving an overall perspective on the business
- A local file containing information for each country
- A country by country reporting file.

Criteria

The following is a quick overview of the criteria:

	excess of NTD 1.5 billion per annum (approximately USD 48 million).
Local TP file	Annual revenue for the Taiwan entity exceeds NTD 300 million
	(approximately USD 9.6 million)
	and carried out related-party transactions amounting to more than NTD 200 million per annum (approximately USD 6.4

Recommendation

For transfer pricing, the burden of proof is on the shoulders of the taxpayer. If a taxpayer is unable to provide supporting documentation as required, the tax office may proceed to adjust the profit margin of the Taiwan entity to a level that the tax office deems appropriate. Such an adjustment can be severe and arbitrary.

This regulation requiring three layers of transfer pricing documentation comes into effect for the first time on fiscal year ending 31 December 2017. We recommend large multi-national companies to check whether or not they meet the criteria requiring them to prepare the three layers of documentation. If so, we recommend the ultimate parent company and related Taiwan entity to plan ahead and work together to ensure that required documentation can be presented to the Tax Office before relevant deadlines.
